

ABSTRACT

An electrostatic actuation device including one mobile electrode, including at least one mobile part with respect to a substrate, at least two electrodes fixed with respect of the substrate, located on a same side of the mobile electrode and each facing a part of the mobile electrode, and at least one pivot with at least of portion of the mobile electrode.